DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,2,6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Jp156170. note than t a single phase of the input voltage is examined, since the claims are silent as to multiple phases, ;and if the input voltage is over say 200 volts, the pulse control is different than if it were under 110 volts. See the abstract. Note that wither phase control or cycle control is set forth.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-5,9 and 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: see previous office action.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Note that the control system does not supply power from a particular phase when that particular phase is detected, as set forth in the instant disclosure. Applicant's arguments advance as if this particular feature is claimed, ~~when~~^{for} in reality, it is not. The claims do not even set forth the different phases exist. Also the predetermined voltage could merely be 0 volts, since the circuit would not function with ~~on~~ voltage. Since the portions of the input cycle are cut if the voltage input is 220 versus 110 volts, the claim limitations are met.
